Lutherans Clear Women As Ministers

U.S. Church Approves Ordination Change

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 25 (NYT). — The 2.6-million-member American Lutheran Church yesterday approved the ordination of women to the ministry. The vote, 560 in favor and 414 against, came on the fourth day of the de-nomination's biennial, weeklong

A week ago, the Episcopal House of Deputies, meeting in Houston, narrowly defeated a move to permit the ordination of women to the priesthood and the episcopacy.

Last May, the 3.2-million-mem-ber Lutheran Church in America, meeting in Minneapolis, approved the ordination of women. Thus, of the three major Lutheran bodies in the United States, only the largest and most conservative, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, bars women from the pulpit.

Other major Protestant bodies now permitting women's ordination arc the United Presbyterian Church of Christ, the Disciples of Christ and the American Baptist

Not For Anybody, Say U.S. Voters As Ballot Nears

By R. W. Apple Jr.

COLUMBUS. Ohio (NYT).—
In nine days. America will vote again. Everywhere, or almost everywhere, the wandering questioner finds a lack of commitment, of enthusiasm, of fervor. Perhaps the voters have never seen their senators and senatorial candidates as tall men who could articulate and respond to their concern. Perhaps the constituents of Boral! Norris, Huey Long, Taft, Leitman and the rest viewed them as lackluster sorts, but it is hard to believe. What is plain this autuom is that most of the senatorial candidates of 1970 croke such emotions in a substantial segment of the elec-

Talk to the voters in Call-fernia or Indiana or Illinois, aud they will tell you that It doesn't make any difference whom they vote for, because, as one man in Indianapolis put it, "Neither one's going to do anything for me." There are hundreds of counterparts to the woman in the Southgate section of Los Angeles who said, "I was for John Kennedy in 1960 and George Wallace in 1968 and this year. I'm not for anybody."

Adlai Stevenson 3d, who seems sure to win the Senate race in Illinois, said in response to a cuestion the other day that people were turned off because they see the world around them, they know how different it is from what they want, and the leaders can't make the connection between the two." He is right, but his campaign has offered no more solutions than most. He is trying to picture his coponent as Robert Welch, fourder of the ultra-right John Burch Society: his opponent is trying to picture him as Yiool? leader Jerry Rubin. Very little time is left for substance.

Big Undecided Vote

The result is a tremendous undecided vote, even after all the television harangues and all of Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew's and President Nixon's travels. A columnist standing outside a factory in Texas City last week counted 20 votes for one candidate. 16 for the other and 14 undecided. Unless comething electrifying happens. many of the undecideds will stay

The lack of commitment eveo among those with stated preferwill probably work to the advantage of incumbents, especially in the House contests. Senators such as Frank E. Moss in Utah. Quentin Burdick in North Dakota and Joseph D. Tydings in Maryland—none of whom is overpoweringly popular with the home folks—may retain their seats largely because their cononents seem insufficiently different to cut through the Apathy, in this context, is a scmcwhat misleading word, because tens of thousands of reople who care deeply about one problem or another will nevertheless fail to vote. It is a disaffection with politicians, not complacency or contentedness. If part of the public man's responsibility is to define and dramatize problems, and to suggest solutions, there has been a marked failure to do so.

Little is said about those disturbing issues that emerge in question-and-answer sessions at club luncheons, in public squares and during morning coffee hours across the country. Nixon on the Stump: Why Is He Knocking Himself Out?

By Robert B. Semple Jr.

WASHINGTON (NYT).-It was raining hard in Asheville, N.C., last Tuesday, and the press ond some of the presidential staff were visibly weary. Earlier, in Johnson City, Tenn., he had nearly talked himself hoarse as he pum-meled the Democrats and the radical kids in behalf of Rep. William Brock's tense, bitter effort to unseat Sen. Albert Gore, the incumbent Democrat, But here he was in Asheville, in the rain, railing against those who would bus children clear across town to achieve "an arbltrary racial balance." More and more insistently the question presented itself: Why had Richard Nixon, the President of the United States, chosen to knock himself out in this

It was not an unreasonable question. By the close of business Tuesday night, he had spoken in 12 states in ten days. At week's end, he addressed the UN and, on Saturday, steel workers m Baltimore. Ahead lay another full week of campaigning that would take him to maybe a dozen more places by election day Nov. 3.

A partial explanation for the President's inpace, as provided by his staff, was that Mr. Nixou really had no other political choice. Starting with the assumption weeks ago that his presence might make a difference among uncommitted voters in perhaps 15 close races, he concluded that he could not very well focus his energies on half those races at the expense of the others. He might well be committing his prestige to the wrong half. Therefore, the decision was made to hit them all,

Beyond that, however, lay a larger consideration; namely, Mr. Nixon's very atrong desire to end two years of frustration wrangling with a hostile Congress by fashloning a workable majority. About a month ago, there were high hopes in the White House that Republicans might actually gain numerical control of the Senate, where the Democrats hold a 57-43 margin, and where Mr. Nixon has received his most annoying setbacks. This would have given him political control of the crucial committee chairmanships and, for the first time, true legislative initiative.

These high hopes have since faded, but Mr. Nixon remains driven by the apparent belief that he can at least build a working "ideolegical" majority by adding e few new conservatives to those who will inevitably be returned to the Senate. Hence the Nixon-Agnew blitz: a saturation effort involving enormous expenditures, six weeks of the Vice-President's time and nearly three solid weeks of the President's —certainly the largest such effort since John F. Kennedy's travels in 1963. If Mr. Agnew's and Mr. Nixon's efforts are combined, it is the largest and most elaborate political production staged by the White House in all time. The tone and content of the Nixon-Agnew. pitch were tough, combative even at times vengeful, as in the President's reminder to Tennessee voters last week that Een. Gore had voted against his first two choices for associate justice of the Supreme Court Clement F. Haynsworth jr. and G. Harrold Carswell.

In much of their rhetoric, both men are appealing to the complaints and dissatisfaction of the middle American. They are not advertising what they have done, nor (ir the old Truman fashion) excertating the opposition for refusing to allow them to do what they believe is best for the country. They are not, in short, running on what might traditionally be called a "posttive" platform. They are running against pot, permissiveness, protest, pornography and dwin-dling patriotism, negative symbols for which, they hope, the silent majority shares their dis-

It must be noted, in all fairness, that Mr. Agnew's speech and Mr. Nixon's speech are not entirely the same thing. The President is em-phasizing what he has done to reduce casualties and troop levels in Victoria, a thoroughly legitimate claim, and from time to time he acceptuates the positive in his domestic legislative efforts, particularly his attempt to reform the welfare system.

But there is not much of this, and on the "moral" or social issue of "violence, lawlessness, and permissiveness," the President's speeches and his subaltern's are in perfect symmetry. Both men also relish the presence of demonstrators in their audiences, as long as they are not so numerous as to become truly disruptive and destroy their usefulness as foils. (When a very modest noise rose from his Grand Forks audience, for example, Mr. Nixon said:

Leaning to

The President has chosen to emphasize and order because he believes he can t separate the bad guys from the good and, if is lucky, bring in enough of the latter to cre that working ideological majority be so stroi desires. He is, in short, clearly hoping that assumption that led him to send Mr. Ag out in the first place is still valid; that ml America's fears of hipples and others will o ride their economic woes,

Staying Democratic

Soft Spotlight on the House

By Warren Weaver Jr. WASHINGTON NYT - It was the week that Pr ident Nixon made a three-hour flying deteur in the driving rain to appear, not for a Senate candidate or a would-be governor, but for a half-dozen brave Republicans who believed they might speck for North Carolina in the House of Representatives. It was the week that Lawrence

F. O'Brien, the Democratic natlonal chairoian, somewhat less than boldly told the National Press Club that his party would hold its present House strength of 243, a prediction a dozen seats more conservative than the political consensus and some 40 below the historical It was a week, in sum, when or so from districts that are so heavily Democratic or Republican that the 1970 congressional campaign poses no serious problem. For the other 115. heading into the final two weeks of the election drive, it can be an ordeal.

For a House candidate, concededly, is upstaged by the actual or would-be governors and senators, even in a nonpresidential year. His speeches are likely to be the preliminary bout on the program. His television spcts cost him dearly and often spray out wastefully over other people's districts. Attention is hard won. And yet the biennial selection of the full membership of the House is probably as consequential in terms of the course of the Republic as any of the more publicized cholces.

The President proposes but Congress disposes, and half of that disposition, sunny or stormy, is entrusted, however enonymously, to each fresh set of House members. This year, from the best evidence available, the set chosen in Novemher will be none too fresh. The surveys, admittedly inexact when so many candidates and imponderables are involved, indicate that the larger House of the 92d Congress next January will look a good deal as it did when the 91st Congress adjourned in December.

Little Change Expected

There is : remarkably broad consensus in mid-October that there will be no significant shift in party power in the House as a result of the impending election. The general expectation is that the Denicerats will gain between five and 10 seats, perhaps up to 15, but this could swing to a Republican pickup of a half dozen or less.

Taken singly, this prospect seems insignificant, Historically, it is not. For over the past 25 years in off-year elections, the party out of the White House has registered an average gain of 40 House seats. Thus, the projected Democratic increase if it materializes at all, would represent a next-to-imperceptible resurgence in political terms.

Since so little change is ansurvey last month found only some 20 races really close—it is alcost impossible to project any material readjustment of present division of the House among urban and rural or liberal and conservative elements. What is probably most important about the House picture as it now dimly appears is that a relatively strong Republican showing, a small loss or even a smaller gain, could set the stage for a 1972 campaign in which the GOP would stand a real chance of winning a majority, choosing the speaker and a whole new set of powerful committee chairmen, blessings the party can barely remember

This fail, a Republican gain of 31 seats would be needed for a majority, and no one sees that. But if the margin can be held to about the same size for 1972. Mr. Nixon's re-election campaign and a spate of intervening reapportionments based on the 1970 census could have a material effect, bringing Re-

The election campaigns for the House, like its members, arc beterogeneous, and it is difficult to examine them with any accuracy in terms of national trends and pervasive issues. There are too meny contests in which personalities, local factors, or a long incumbency advantage are likely to counteract rising party popularity else-

The political polls, which cannot possibly afford to sample public opinion in all the districts or even the close ones, settie for asking their segment of the electorate which party they would like to see carry their congressional district, wherever it might be.

Poll two weeks ago, the Democrats carry such a straw poll 49 to 44, or about 52-48 when the undecideds are divided. The last time the congressional vote actually split that way, in 1966. the Democrats won a 248-to-187 majority in the House. Today the House is 243-187 Democratic, with five seats vacant.

Still far from determined is the role that Mr. Nixon and Vice-President Spiro Agnew may play, as the campaign moves into its closing intensity, in boosting Republican candidates in close districts up into a majority. In the last off-year

The question which can't be answered yet is whether his popularity will go through the same cycle as that of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace: As - Mr. Wallace campaigned across the nation in 1968 for the presidency, his popularity rating climbed month by month to a high of 21 percent. From early September on however, it began to decline. In the words of one political observer, be "talked himself right out of the picture." After he beat the same drum for many months, ultimately the public lost its enthusiasm, and his rating and his vote dropped accordingly. Rating Is Down

None of this, however, explains the extreme insensitivity of the Nixon administration in dinner for visiting heads of state and government the same night as the traditional UN Day concert which this year had been arranged to close the an-niversary session. Suggestions that the Saturday night dinner be shifted to Sunday were unavailing, although many world leaders undoubtedly would have been glad to stay over for the visit to Washington. What might have been a pleasant and cordial gesture thus took on the appearance of an attempt to steal the UN's thunder.

General Assembly President Edvard Hambro and Secretary General U Thant sent politic regrets after Mr. Hambro made a futile attempt to persuade the administration to shift the dinner to New York. The unusual precantions, which included about 60 policemen at barricades around the White House, and an additional 80 special operations division officers on standby duty, were taken partly because of the logistics of getting that many heads of state into the White House at one time. However, police officials also said recent kidnappings and bomb threats involving government officials had apparently played a part in Later, these sources report. the secretariat received a second call stating that there was no onger a conflict in Mr. Kaunda's schedule and that he would speak to the Assembly at 10:30 am. on the 19th as originally planned. The interesting point is that this call was relayed through the Organization of African Unity, thereby raising the suspicion that someone deliberately promoted Mr. Kaunda's estrangement from the United

WHETHER or not the United States was victimized by some sinister machination, the fact is that Mr. Kaunda left abruptunfulfilled and his feelings obviously ruffled. Yet he is regarded as one of the most moderate of African leaders, and Secretary of State William Rogers took especial pains to cultivate him during an African tour in February. Mr. Nyerere (who felt somewhat slighted because Mr. Rogers did not stop in Tanzania) is widely respected as a philosopher. Understandably, there has been muttering here that Mr. Nixon has time to see the deputy foreign minister of the military regime in Greece but not African leaders, and that the United States does not care about African feelings, Some Indian representatives reportedly even tried to promote a boycott of the White House dinner (which Prime Minister Indira Gandhi did not attend out of protest against renewed American arms sales to Pakis-

OR TAKE the composition of the U.S. delegation to the General Assembly. As initially an-nounced, it included former Republican Rep. Gordon Scherer of Ohio, now a Cincinnati attorney. Evidently no one in the White House investigated deeply enough to discover that Mr. Scherer would be considered "personally obnoxious" by Democratic Sen. Stephen Young of Ohio because of an incident when Mr. Scherer was a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee. He has not been replaced. The situation of a bard-working alternate public delegate, Richard Oimer, also was nearly imperiled by bad staff work. Mr. Gimer, 30, an attorney from Iowa, was until recently an assistant to Republican Rep. William J. Scherle of Iowa. After his appointment to the U.N. duty he was surprised to learn that the Iowa congressional delegation had not been advised of it. Instead, it had been cleared-to no point-with the Virginia delegation since Mr. Gimer now lives in Springfield.

All of which leads back to the seriousness with which the Nixon administration regards its relationships at the UN. The U.S. mission to the UN is composed of competent and respected professionals, who undoubtedly could have prevented many of these gaffes if their advice had been taken. But the impression exists that the professionals here are rarely consulted by the White House, in part because of the policy of keeping a low profile at the UN.

One of the real fears for the future of the UN is that the organization may die from public boredom. Unhappily, current. American practices as seen from here seem to be contribut-

An Era of Negotiations?

Mr. Nixon's own observation Friday at the United Nations that "a true détente is built by a series of actions, not by a superficial shift in the apparent mood" is perhaps the aptest comment on the hopeful glow he helped to cast on Thursday's meeting between the President and Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko. Whether that meeting achieved its chlef American purpose of indicating to Moscow that it cannot treat the United States as a declining power, a "pitiful helpless glant." in Mr. Nixon's colorful phrase, will be discovered only as events

Already it is clear, however, that there is nothing easy or autometic about Mr. Nixon's inaugural forecast, repeated at regular intervals sinca, that en era of confrontation with the Soviet Union is yielding to an era of negotiations. The differences between the interests of the two great powers are simply too great. Because of those differences, "negotiation" with the Russians cannot be simply a procedure for reaching agreements; It must be a kind of confrontation of its own. nonviolent but not on that account divorced from power.

Just what is involved in such negotiation can be seen in Mr. Gromyko's reply, in his United Nations speech Wednesday, to Secretary Rogers's press conference of Oct. 9. Speaking of the key development that had given pause to American expectations of an era of negotiations-Soviet cheating in the Suez cease-fire-Mr. Rogers had stated: "The evidence is conclusive that they [the Russians] have moved missiles in. . When I talk to Mr. Gromyko I can give him the evidence of the violations." Asked then if the Russians in fact had been party to the cease-fire agreement, he replied, "I don't think we have to get into that" Mr. Gromyko, however, skipping over the matter of missiles, got precisely into "that." Referring to "an allegation. . .tbat the Soviet Union had violated some kind of terms of the cease-fire agreement," he declared: "The Soviet Union has never entered into any agreement on cease-fire terms. On the part of the United States there was never any attempt to discuss anything like cease-fire terms with the Soviet Union."

The evident meaning of this exchange is that the administration's urgent yearning for a cease-fire outran its diplomacy: the United States failed to get Moscow to sign aboard the Egyptian-Israeli cease-fire. This hardly conceals or excuses the Russians self-evident role in the violation of the cease-fire. It is disturbing, even embarrassing, to find the Kremlin pulling off such a cheap trick Nations ought not seek, Mr. Nixon said Friday, "to exploit every volatile situation for their own advantage, or to squeeze the maximum advantage for themselves out of every negotletion." The episode does serve, however, to remind everyone of the requirements of an era of negotiation. As the compensatory flow of American arms to Israel demonstrates, it might be added, the United States is not powerless to redress a slipped diplomatic and military balance, when events do teke a bed turn.

In a second recent case of "negotiation" over Cuba, quite another denouement came about. This was the sequence beginning with reported intelligence indications that Moscow might be building a stretegic submarine base in Clenfuegos, and ending with (1) a Kremlin announcement of continued respect for its 1962 pledge not to base offensive weapons in Cuba and (2) American paign. Nothing is quite the same acknowledgement of that Soviet word. How this sequence came about, how much its publication owes to the election campaign, how meaningful and durable is the Soviet pledge: These things are not known. Certainly it would be easier for Moscow to back off a bit in Cuba-where it made at most only an incipient and ambiguous move and where it was not acting under pressure to aid a client under duress-than in Cairo. Yet it is encouraging to find the Russians (granted, after some prodding) respecting and invoking an arrangement mede to asin this part of the country. Eveo (granted, after some prodding) respecting sure stability in a volatile part of the world.

It was perbaps inevitable, in a period when Moscow was entering into strategic parity and Washington was trimming its international role, that the Russians would undertake to test American resolve and staying power. Indeed, many Americans have wondered if Mr. Nixon's forecast of an era of negotiations represented merely a glih assurance of international ease to tired Americans, or a serious evaluation of the prospects for order and peace. This is not a matter which can be settled at any single meeting of public men, or in any brief run of events. It is a matter which will test not only the intent of the Soviet Union but the skill and the will and the intent of the United States.

THE WASHINGTON POST.

Another Middle East Debate

General Assembly is scheduled to make a to tamper substantively with that balanced new effort this week to deal with the situation in the Middle East. In the absence of effective action by the Security Council, the Big Four or the estranged parties themselves, it would be the right-indeed the duty-of the Assembly to discuss this threat to world peace,

The reported agreement by the Big Four foreign ministers to press for resumption of the peace talks could eliminate the need for such a debate, provided the Russians agree to the correction of Egypt's violations of tha cease-fire. But if the UN debate proves necessary and is not to do more harm than good, it is essential that members keep two facts in mind: (1) the Security Council three years ago adopted a formula that has been accepted by both sides as the basis for a settlement; and (2) procedures for negotiating the final terms of an agreement under thet formula were advanced by the United States and agreed to last August by Israel, Egypt and the Soviet Union.

Reaffirmation by the General Assembly at this time of the Security Council's 1967

At Egypt's request, the United Nations resolution might be helpful But any attempt framework for a long-range settlement would only make the prospects for peace more remote.

> The Assembly must not forget that the plan advanced originally by Secretary of State Rogers encompassed a pledge by the parties to observe a strict standstill ceasefire along the Suez Canal.

> That agreement, which included an explicit provision that "activities within the (ceasefire) zones will be limited to the maintenance of existing installations at their present sites and positions," has been massively violated by the Egyptians, with Soviet help. These violations have not only seriously disturbed the balance of forces in the area but have undermined the climate of confidence upon which a settlement must be founded.

International Opinion

Mr. Gromyko's Smile

Mr. Gromyko smiles on leaving the White House. He considered his conversation with President Nixon "very interesting" and expressed the hope that it "will be of positive significance for the development of Soviet-American relations."

This was a reminder of the doctrine of peaceful coexistence which the "troika" never renounced. This doctrine is a mixture of realism, pride and taste for domination: a complicity between billioneires. The Chinese analysis [of this complicity] does not lack cogency. Should we complain about it? Should we consider that it is only a false appearance?

Everyone feels torn between his taste for world peace that this coexistence guarantees on the whole, and the crying injustices that It engenders. There only remains for the second-ranking nations the right and duty of keeping all their possibilities of calling on the two giants to abide by equity.

Nixon: President or Politician?

By James Reston

ROANOKE, Va.—The state of Virginia has never seemed more beautiful or more troubled politically than it does now in the midst of the autumn election cameven in this most stable of American states.

For one thing, Virginia has, of all things, a Republican governor. Linwood Holton, and a very good one. It has as usual a Democratic senator, Harry Byrd, but he is running as an Independent. It also has a powerful Democratic political base in the courthouses, but most of the courthouse elders are not working for George C. Rawlings jr., the Democretic caodidate for Senate. but for Senator Byrd, the Blue Ridge is not blue; it is muted red and brown and yellow, an immense, spectacular and masculine mountain range in the afternoon sun, but gentle and vague in the morning mist. In a way, Virginia is a symbol of our national politics again for the first time since the beginnings of the Republic. It is caught in the struggle between the old politics and the new politics, between the days of Harry Byrd sr. and Harry Byrd jr., between the white courthouse elders and the new organized black voters, and the political forces in the Republican party are just as confused as the political forces in the Democratic party.

The Republicans, and particularly Mr. Nixon, have been arguing years that the South was essentially conservative and should make a place for their party. With this in mind, President Nixon campaigned for Linwood Holton and helped him win the governorship of Virginia. But in this election, the President's attitude toward the governor of Virginia has changed.

Mr. Nixon has not been arguing in this election for a two-party South. He is going around the country stumping for Republican senatorial candidates regardless of their qualities, but he is not backing the Republican senatorial candidate in Virginia. He is for the "principle" of Republican power here, but he is really for Harry Byrd fr. oo the theory that the White House can count on Senator Byrd's vote.

No doubt this strategy will win. With the President and courthouse elders for him. Senator Byrd is almost sure to be re-elected, but the consequences of this kind of oldfashioned power politics may be very serious for President Nixon.

In 1922 he added: "The French are not going to last long in Syria and then shall have yet another Arab state north of Palestine and the Jews will be entirely encircled by bitter enemies, which places them in a precarious position. I trust I live see an independent Jewish state in Palestine: their survival will be precarious surrounded by enemies; but the Jews are good fighters."

The Russian Aspect

Years later, in 1956, Meinertzagen contemplated the situation shortly before the Suez expedition and concluded: 'Neither we nor America has dared look the real truth in the face, namely, that foment trouble in the Middle East in the hope that she can introduce her poison as successfully into Africa as she did in Eastern Asia. Nasser is the minor threat, Russia the major."

And (six months later): "I can see the embryo of a third world war. Russia is slowly gaining the upper hand in the Middle East. She is using the Arah hatred of the West and the Arab-avowed to oust the West from the Arab

What Is 'the Church'?

Referring to your news item of Oct. 28, "Saint of Naples Leaves Church to Work for Poor," I would like to point out that Father Borrelli did not "leave the Church" when he was given lay status. He is still a member of the Church. Please note: The Church is composed of all members. The Church is not priests and hierarchy alone. ... I don't wonder you make this error. During the recent Valuen Council there was a distinct effort made to have the hierarchy stop referring to themselves as "the Church" when making pronouncements. It was a failure. They continued to use the expression the Church" when they should have said "the hierarchy" or "the magis-

If Willy Brandt loses his parliamentary majority—as is predict-ed—he can blame no one but himself. His stupidity and blindness in thinking that he could make an enforceable agreement with Moscow is unpardonable in a man of Brandt's experience. Russia's long history of break-

MONTREAL—Americans worried Canada at large rose from 8.8 by political violence should cent in 1966 to 4.7 percent this think hard about what has been in Quebec the comparable rise happening here in Canada. For this country faces a national crisis born of the self-same stuff being used as a political football back home. Thanks to the rare gifts of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. Minister Pierre Kinott Thousau, Canada may surmount the crisis. But in the United States the hand-ful of leaders who could play the Trudeau role if serious troubles materialized are now being hammered by an administration pleased to represent fiself as a force for law

The source of trouble in Canada is a submerged minority—the French Canadians centered here in Quebec Province and comprising about a fifth of the country. For two cen-turies the French Canadians stood firm against the English ascendancy by holding fast to Frankish ways and the old-time religion. Postwar prosperity, financed by American investments and hringing along American culture, melted the resistance. In the early part of this decade. French Canada opened itself to the modern world through a "quiet revolution" against the old parochialism

Support Is Broad

These tough measures hav far gone down very well. Cl Ryan, the editor of Le Devoir a chief spokesman for the Fr community here, acknowledged other day that even in Qu practically everybody supported prime minister.

But Mr. Trudeau-and only Trudeau-could take those dis steps because he had previo established a rapport with the most in trouble. In the absence of any startling news on the political and international fronts, the stock market continued to cower in a cocoon of caution last week while waiting for some dramatic developments to induce its emergence with a positive movement,

Prices of the leading stock indexes made little headway for the eighth week in a row, and a mixed pattern prevailed for the market as a whole, with stocks responding mainly to individual corporate announcements, particularly earnings reports. There has been virtually no net change in the Dow Jones industrial stock index since the end of August.

Investor attention focused principally on the earnings trend and the course of events in the economic realm last week. In both cases, the news was much better than generally expected or realized.

The word for the profits situation was: encouraging. And, despite some commentary to the contrary, the word for the economy-specifically in the inflation picture—was brighten-

Hesitance, Wariness

Nevertheless, the stock market remained wary and hesitant. The volume of trading receoed again from the lofty peaks set a few weeks ago as the institutional sector moved to the sidelines, awaiting resolution of some of the uncertainties hovering over the market-the General Motors strike, the course of the economy, the upcoming elections, and the worrisome

On the basis of a preliminary survey of simost 600 nonfinancial corporations, the First National City Bank of New York found that 55 percent of them had higher after-tax earnings in the third quarter than a year ago, And, compared with the second quarrer of this year, 47 percent of the companies included in the tally actually showed an increasewell above the usual seasonal pattern. Aggregate profits for the nearly 800 companies in the July-September quarter totaled $3.6 billion, or only 3 percent less than the results achieved in the 1969 period. In the first half of this year, the same companies experienced a year-to-year decline of 6 percent.

The bank attributed the narrowing of the gap between 1969 and 1970 profit performance to "vigorous cost-cutting efforts at many firms and the beginnings of a general recovery in sales volume."

With sales continuing to improve and productivity rising, the outlook is for better profits in the fourth quarter and in 1971, once the General Motors

Raymood J. Saulnier, a professor of economics at Barnard College and a former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said that corporate profits might advance to at least $93 billion in 1971 from the low level of about $84 billion expected for this year. By the end of next year, he added, the figure might climb to an annual rate of more than $100 billion, representing a return to

UNITED STATES TRUST INVESTMENT FUND

Recent newspaper articles about Gramco Management Ltd. have incorrectly referred to its off-shore real estate fund as United States Investment Fund.

Pursuant to an agreement dated December 18, 1968, Gramco undertook to refrain from using the name United States Investment Fund, in order to avoid confusion with United States Trust Investment Fund, and to use instead the name USIF Real Estate Fund.

This is to clarify that there is no connection whatsoever between any fund sponsored or operated by Gramco and United States Trust Investment Fund. The United States Trust Investment Fund, incorporated in Luxembourg, is sponsored by the United States Trust Company of New York, which was founded in 1853, and which currently supervises investments of about H-billion-dollar assets for individuals, institutions and corporations.

of foreign currency reserves ped briefly to $7 billion, has spurred discussion about a forther upward revision in the mark's parity. However, in contrast to last year, hardly any West German economist siders a new revaluation a likelihood, let alone a necessity.

Drop in Backleg These economists point out thet although Bonn's trade balance was still showing an undiminished surplus of ex-ports, the backlog of foreign orders has been dwindling faster than that of domeatic orders. They also note the recurrent deficits in the country's overall balance of payments, caused mainly by steadily increasing private capital abroad. From January through August the accumulated deficit was about $1 billion compared with $2.4 billion last year.

As a belated effect of revaluation, the pressure of huge order backlogs eased last summer. By the end of June new foreign orders were coming in at a rate 1.7 percent below that of June, 1989. By contrast, the flow of foreign orders at the end of the first quarter was still 3.6 percent above the corresponding figure in 1969. Meanwhile, the growth rate of domestic orders fell from 11.4 percent at the end of the first quarter to only 9,6 percent at the end of the second quarter. Price Policies

Many West German companies, particularly those relying on exports, grudgingly absorbed price increases for their products, deciding to wait for a more opportune moment to put the revaluation burden on their customers. Other companies, including Volkswagen, anticipated a change and raised some of their foreign prices before revaluation.

Still other companies, including most of West Germany's large chemical concerns and automobile makers, stepped up their branch activities abroad to offset the effect of revalu-For instance, foreign subsidiaries of Daimler-Benz. which makes cars, trucks and buses, increased their production 30 percent in 1969.

There appears to have been no slackening in employment thus far. At the low point of the 1966-67 recession the number of unemployed was almost 700,000, or about seven times the number of jobless reported last September. At present, there are still eight job vacancies for each job applicant.

Summing up his assessment of revaluation's long-range effects, a spokesman for West Germany's Federation of Industries said it was only one of the many factors contributing to "a slowly, slowly abating record boom." Revaluation's most significant effect on imports has been in the service trade, because it is now cheaper for Germans to travel abroad using foreign carriers and services. The deficit on services by foreign operators, including transportation and travel companies, construction concerns and foreign workers, accounted for about one quarter of the over-all deficit of about $1.2 billion in the basic balance of payments at the end of June. Sporadic speculation about a new revaluation of the deutsche mark is deemed all the more groundless : here because any further drop in West Germany's foreign : sales would only force industry to seek greater sales at home and thus accelerate the price-pay spiral even faster than at present. Finance Minister Alex Möller's record budget for 1971, which is 121 percent higher than 1970's, will probably force the central bank to maintain its high bank rate indefinitely. The 100-billion deutsche mark budget— about $27 billion—seems to indicate that the government has decided on economic growth at the expense of rigid stability.

Opposing the economics minfater, Karl Schiller, who favors budgetary cuts as a means of dampening the economy, Mr. Möller argues that the Federal Republic "must learn to live" with an inflationary rate that is regarded as normal in other

Mr. Möller thinks that stabitizing West German prices would only lead to another export boom, thus strengthening foreign demands for a new upward revaluation of the deutsche mark. Last fall the mark was to 27 3224 cents. -

However, there can be no doubt that Mr. Möller's apparent victory in the budget debate will help the opposition Christion Democrats in their efforts to convince an inflation-wary nation that Mr. Brandt's government "has not learned from the past," in which Germany went through two full-fledged inflations in a generation,

The Prandt government is in dilemma: It needs more money to carry out promised reforms in edocation, housing and transportation. But, its willingness to tolerate price increases within certain limits raises the danger that the mark's potential weakness could reduce the government's capability to finance these reforms.

Commodity Index

More important than the course of consumer prices has been the action of the 22 hasic commodity index. This key indicator of pricing trends has been moving steadily lower since late winter, when it started to reverse its two-year upward trend.

Between March 10 and Oct. 13, the commodity index, which includes prices of such thiogs as zinc, tin, steel scrap, rubber cotton, print cloth and wool tops, has dropped about 5.8 percent-a highly significant decline and a definite precursor of change in the consumer price index before tong. It also means lower costs right now on raw materials for many

Interest Rates

Meanwhile, it was difficult last week to make any case for lower interest rates, with consumer prices still rising strongly and borrowers continuing to seek extraordinary amounts of funds.

Last Wednesday, for instance American Telephone announced plans to sell $500 million of debt securities next month-an offering that will bring to $4.39 billion the total of Bell System issues sold this year. The following day, the federal government announced plans to refinance $7.67 billion of 5 per-cents coming due in Mid-November, and Treasury officials said they probably would have to borrow $4.5 billion before the end of the year.

The Treasury offered holders of the maturing notes either a new 42-month 7 1/4 percent note or some more of an outstanding five-year nine-month 7 1/2 percent note priced to yield 7.39 percent.

The stock market closed generally lower for the week, with all the leading stock indexes down moderately in relatively quiet trading.

The margin of issues declining over those advancing was more than 2-to-1 as 1,103 stocks finished with minus signs and 521 sported plus marks. The Dow Jones industrial index was down 3.97 points to 759.38, maintaining the small pattern of change that has prevailed for the last eight weeks. At the end of August it stood at 764.58. All other major averages also held within a narrow range and closed with small losses. Trading on the Big Board totaled 51.1 million shares for the week, or some 600,000 more than in the week before.

By Alan Truscott

The lead of a high honor normally means that the next card in sequence is held in support, or that the leader has not more than a doubleton. Experts recognize an exception when the defending side has great length in the suit that is being led. In that case there can be little danger in leading an unsupported king or queen, and there may be an advantage for the later defense.

An example of this is shown in the programmed deal. East opened the bidding with one club, the choice of most experts holding two fivecard black suits. It is usually better to respond in a major suit rather than support a minor, so West bid one heart.

East showed his spade suit over North's take-out double, South bid diamonds, which North supported vigorously to the four-level in the face of club bidding by East-West.

Against a normal defense, South would have had no difficulty. With the spade king well-placed for a finesse, it would seem that the declarer would lose at most one club trick and two hearts. But West made the brilliant lead of the clob king, which turned out to be doubly advantageous. It allowed him to retain the lead, and it misled the declarer about the high-card situation in the club suit.

At the second trick, West made another fine move by leading the heart deuce. Faced with a guess in the heart suit, South not unnaturally, West held the ace or queen of clubs as well as the On this basis, seemed quite certain that East held the heart ace to justify his opening bid. If, for example. West held the heart ace and the king-queen of clubs, East could have at most nine high-card points. South cannot be blamed for guessing wrongly in such circumstances. He played low from dummy at the second trick and was defeated immediately. East took the heart queen, returned the three to his partner's ace, and took the setting trick by ruffing a third heart lead with his singleton trump. NORTH

THE CREENING OF AMERICA

How the Youth Revolution Is Trying to Make America Livable.

Bu Charles A. Reich. Random House. 399 pp. $7.95. Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

ORGAN music, please, and a litt'e attention from the choir. Youth culture has gotten its very own Norman Vincent Peale in the person of Charles A. Reich. And his positive think-ing is this. America has passed through two stages of con-sciousness. The first, "con-sciousness I," was the laissezfaire mentality of the 19th century—free marketplace, hid-den tiller, dog eat dog. God helps those who help themselves, and all that. Didn't work. De-

Consciousness II came along and gave us the new der—alphabetotracy, administration, uptight organization men. liberals, the mystique of institutions, deferred pleasure, all that. Doesn't work. The Corporate State. Vietnam. So here comes Consciousness III—drugs, rock music, bell-bottom trousers, communes, affirmation of self now. And Con. III is going to do the trick, because once we're all III's (that's Reich's rhetoric, not mine) we'll just stop con-suming what we don't need, stop doing meaningless work, stop playing war and ego games. We'll all turn green as "April's Green" (Wallace Stevens's phrase).

Well and good and perhaps true, even if it doesn't require 400 pages to say and even if most of it has been said before. One need only compare the young New York City taxi driv-ers with the older ones to see what Reich is getting at And many of his points are arresting. For instance, his very com-pelling anatomy of the corpo-rate state and why it is breaking down. His contention that the affluent society is destroying itself because sooner or later we'll discover that we can't defer pleasure and have it at the same time-that hedonism (the carrot) and puritanism (the stick) can't coexist forever. His argument that it's not us against "their" conspiracy, but that we're all victims of this thing together. His statement that "The great error of our times has been the belief in structural or institutional solutions." And his anti-revolution-ary point that altered consciousness must precede changed systems, not vice versa.

All the same questions arise. First of all, if the coming of the III's is inevitable, why did Reich bother to write a book promoting them? He did so, of course, to allay the fears of youth culture among us I's and II's, to identify a historical process, and, above all, to speed the conversion to III. For Reich sincerely helieves that Vice-President Agnew is a flower child inside and that hard hats hide soft hearts. : But has Reich succeeded? Not with this reader he hasn't. When this reader began to sample Reich's vision of society after its "betterment" when he was asked to go all soft and gooey over super-laundromats and jet travel when he read of "the Consciousness III idea of community' that "The squirrel needs the acorn and the acorn needs the squirrel" this read was seized with such a palsy those ironical, cynical, sarcas thoughts that Consciousness is supposed to abjure that was driven deep into a st of Con. 8.

He found himself inquiring

If the corporate state is got to be destroyed by heights consciousness, who then supply all that lovely technology that heightened consciousne can "relate to meaning fully "according to Reich. W in the "organic community going to supply that cornucon of international foods in the Berkeley supermarket? And the corporate state is no long-capable of coopting III's, wi were all those dropout shopping so happily in the Berkeley supermarket? And Are the after effects of LS always benign? Can Mr. Reg offer no better concre examples of non-competitive communal living than re-bands. Woodstock, and Ke Kesey's transcontinental in trip and subsequent idyli wil the Rell's Angels? One is in mediately tormented wit thoughts and Jimi Hendrix an Janis Joplin, of the rate : which those bands break up. (Altamont and its gang murde (Kesey: "We goofed." one happens to know direct experience that ther were ego trips and power play and hierarchies aplenty amon-Kesey's Merry Pranksters and that people got hurt and numb ed and brutalized by its culture

And: If it's people and-no things that matter how ca Reich write of marriage that "is inconsistent with the lik lihood of growth and chang and at the same time say abo "a pair of boots" that "all us know that buying [the is easy, but developing a re-tionship with them takes pr-patience, skill, thought, knowledge, plus a lot of ca Finally, one might ask: If

Reich is committed to the firmation of self, to the tr cendence of the human s over the skeletal clutch machine and institution, has he chosen to express self in the logic of deperse ration and in the languag the lecture hall? Why ha used for his lesson so recant and cliche and so ously avoided wit and poe One suspects one knows answer to that Apparent'y Reich has experienced his consciousness change in g from lawyer to bell-bottc him. But in his liberated a he has surveyed the Amer landscape, read his own e. rience into it, and bridged chasm between himself and noumens with the language "objectivity." That is senting tality and that, by his very o definitions, is where violence. the spirit of self hegins.

this one we're seeing here today. How about that, Lyn?" "That's correct, Irving, I've served in a few Congresses that did an awful lot for all mankind but this one right here has had more desire than any I have ever seen.'

"I don't think I've ever seen Mike Mansfield more completely in charge of the Senate than in that last motion he made for unanimous consent to suspend the quorum call."

"That's correct. Irving. Mike has been just brilliant for the whole two years, and by saying that I don't mean to take anything away from Speoker McCormack, or Leader Albert. or Republican spokesmen Ford and Scott, or any of the great doves like Bill Fulbright and Georgie McGovern, or any of the great humanitarians like Strom Thurmond and Mendel Rivers, or anybody else. This entire Congress down to the last man has been one of the greatest collections of human beings that it's ever been my honor to be associated with on this network." "Vice - President Agnew wouldn't agree with you in every case, Lyn."

"That's correct, Irving, The Vice-President is a great competitor and naturally he sometimes gets excited in the heat of the contest and throws a few wild phrases, and other Congressmen come back with phrases just as high-spirited as Spiro's, but that's not what American government is all

"No it isn't, Lyn. A lot of people ask why it is, if every Congress we report on is really as brilliant and selfless as we always say it is, that President Nixon wants to have so many of the Democrats and Charlie Goodell removed. He does want them removed doesn't he Lyn? "That's correct, Irving. Of course you'd be unlikely to know that If you depended entirely on us for your news. The President wants to make a few substitutions in the Congress but nobody has to worry about what might happen if he does because, of course, the boys he wants to bring in are as brilliant, capable, self-sacrificing, humane and respectful toward mothers all over the world as any bunch of candidates I have ever seen, in addition to having great second

"President Nixon, Lyn, has great will to win, But more than that, he has this remarkable talent for welding together a congressional team I hat would do even more for America than the present team, impossible as that may seem. "And now, Lyn, we have a bulletin from the State Department which has just been handed to me. Three American tourists in Paris have just been told by a Paris taxi driver that he would rather visit New York any day than Moscow, I see Lvn wants to say something about that,"

That's correct, Irving. You just can't say enough about the way the State Department has been playing the game in France, particularly among Paris taxi drivers. Of course. you doo't have to work hard to make the whole world want to come to New York.

"Who else looks great today

Irvine?' "Well, Lyn, what more superlatives can you think of to heap on those amazing, hard-driving brilliantly imaginative twenty million Californians in the way they came out of the last census. No Californians have ever put on a more stunning display of second effort, third effort and even fourth and fifth effort."

"That's correct, Irving. Of course when you say that, you're not taking anything away from those Minnesotans or South Dakotans or even ..."

'Freak Power' May Win a Colorado Election

By Anthony Ripley

A SPEN, Colo., Oct. 25 (NYT). —It wasn't really supposed least not in the ordinary sense, when Hunter S. Thompsonaothor, satirist, master of the put-on, connoisseur of the absurd-announced that he was running for the office of county sheriff with the support of "freak power." It was a joke, a diversionary tactic. It was a wild, raucous noise raised from the underground of this pres-tigious tourist city famous for its skilng, its classical music festivals and its Institute for Humanistic Studies.

fact is that Hunter Thompson's bizarre campaign, probably the most bizarre on the American scene today, may well make him the next sheriff of Pitkin County. And even if it doesn't, it will have generated enough political passion to last placid Aspen an-other century. For this year as always, while the national political figures grab the headlines and monopolize the television screen, it is the hot local cam-to be, it is no longer that. The

Three-Way Race

paign like Mr. Thompson's that arouses the most interest in any

The reason Mr. Thompson has a chance of winning, as a matter of political arithmetic, is that in a three-way race his two opponents-the Democratic incumbent, Sheriff Carroll Whitmire, and the Republican challenger. Glenn M. Ricks may split the vote and let him slip in by default.

But the reason Mr. Thompson is in any position to think about political arithmetic at all is that at a time when Aspen is deeply worried about where it is going and why, he has touched a public nerve with some fundamental questions of value and direction,

The trouble with Aspen is that it is such a tremendous success. For 20 years the wealthy have come here for ski runs with a vertical fall of 3,300 feet. They mixed with the beatniks and the ski bums of a different generation, and today with the looghairs.

Developments have been mushrooming in the valley of the Roaring Pork River, which rims along the base of the giant ski mountains, and with them has come a growing sense of uneasiness among this city's population of 2,350 permanent Writer's Joke Takes Serious Turn In Race for Sheriff at Aspen

Hunter S. Thompson beside portrait of J. Edgar Hoover.

The words "greed" and "ex-ploitation" and "raping the land" are heard and their bite is deepening. Where Aspen Mountain was once the only ski area, there are now Buttermilk. Aspen Highlands, Snowmass at Aspen and the new Aspen Wildcat, all outside the city in Pitkin County. Apartments and condominiums are springing up below the newly opened slopes and along their lower skiing areas. They are huge, repetitive buildings with subdivision architecture to Such development has traditionally been hailed as solid American economic progress. But more and more of Aspen's permanent residents see it as a tragedy, turning their beautiful and remote mountain valley into something like a Los Angeles suburb.

For the last year, those who oppose such progress have been moving in on the city govern-ment in Aspen and are now taking aim at the county gov-

The anti-progress movement has little formal organization, but its spiritual leader seems to be City Councilman Edwin C. (Ned) Vair, who now is running as an independent for the only seat open on the three-man county commission.

The basic theory was that Mr. Thompson would run such wild, noisy, frightening and diverting campaign for sheriff that Mr. Vair would seem like a moderate in comparison and be elected easily.

Mr. Thompson seemed the right man for the job. Ha is the author of the book "Hell's Angels" and a contributor to newspapers and magazines (just last month, writing under the pseudonym Raoul Duke in Scanlan's magazine, he produc-ed an acid satire on a policeman's affection for weapons). And with the artist Thomas Hart Benton, he is co-editor of The Aspen Wallposter, a shock treatment journalistic effort that is a poster on one side and a political broadside on the

with a platform that included these items: rename Aspen Fat City," rip np the streets with jackhammers and plant sod instead, disarm the sheriff's deputies, erect a set of stocks to punish dishonest drug dealers, savagely harass business and real estate exploiters of the valley and prevent hunting and fishing in the county by out-siders without a resident's permission.

To help persuade more independents to register, Mr. Thompson revived a device used in earlier city elections: the fictitious outside developer called Bill Greed," who urges a radio audience to stay away from the polls and let "Old Bill and his pals" take care of every-

Deepest Fear

"It represents, in a clowning way, the deepest fear we have of degradation of our life style." said Mr. Vair, whose fortunes have risen with Mr. Thompson's. Everyone who lives here is here by choice. The choice is a life style not encumbered by that image of Bill Greed."

The campaign for new registration has added 739 new voters to the rolls since tha September primary election. Mr. Whitmire, who has held the sheriff's job four years, says he has tried to offer competent, honest law enforcement and is like many conservatives in Aspen: He can hardly believe what is happening to him. Stumbling over his words before a crowd of 300 at a sheriff's candidate meeting in Snowmass, the incumbent sheriff apologized. "If I seem nervous, it's because this many people scare me," he said. "I want the job real bad." Mr. Thompson, wearing tennis hat over his shaved head and smoking with a cigarette holder, said he wanted to change the entire concept- of

He promised to hire a competent under sheriff and defended his platform, though admitting that some of it was written with tongue in cheek before he was serious about the campaign.

"No doubt," he wrote in the Wallposter's first edition last March, "the Reds are Evil and the Young are Crazy but it's hard to imagine how anybodywhatever their age, or politics —could destroy this valley any more efficiently than it's being destroyed today, by all the Right and Respectable People,"

The man on the witness stand in Bradenton, Florida, hoisted his glass, toasted the judge and tossed off four ounces of booze Tha judge ordered another

The witness was 65-year-old Alton J. Cothern. With the judge's approval he was attempting to prove his driving wasn't impaired by drink no matter what the highway patrol breath test said.

Troopers who arrested the retired bricklayer said the had an alcohol percentile of .16. Florida law says a driver is drunk if it reaches 10-or 100 milligrams per 100 cubic centi-meters of blood. The percentila is calculated by determining the amount of alcohol exhaled from an individual's lungs. The testing machine then uses this ratio to compute the quantity of alcohol in the blood stream that would produce a specified breath reading.

"I sure hate to drink by myself," Cothern said, as he bent his elbow again.

Two half-pints after the demonstration began, the machine had jumped to .18. Jodge Robert Schultz ordered a recess to give the count time to subside to the level at the time of Cothern's arrest.

When court reconvened, Cothern, down to .16, was put through the standard tests: walk a line, stand on one leg, touch your nose with your eyes During the nose-touching test.

Cothern demonstrated that he could hit his mouth every time. Guilty, said the jury.
